To fight the Nazis' rain of incendiaries on Britain, one thousand miles of fire hose have been turned out since the war began by the weavers in a north of England village. Here craftsmen were weaving on their hand looms two hundred years before the mill from which it came began the manufacture of up-to-date canvas hose. They made by hand the sailcloth, the tradition runs, for Nelson's flagship "Victory." The mill in which their descendants work has produced more than eight thousand miles of fire hose by modern machine methods. One order was for two hundred miles of it. It was in this same village that two brothers, working in a cellar, wove the first circular tube which eventually led to the making of fire hose-piping. They hit on the idea when trying to discover a simpler way of making hoses.

First move to combat gasoline shortage on a commercial scale has been made by the Alberta government through the Liquor Control Board. A carload of No. 4 durum wheat was shipped to a Vancouver distillery and turned into power alcohol. The test followed appeal made by Hon. J. A. McKinnon, minister of trade and commerce for the Dominion, and Hon. J. G. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture. "We have a splendid sample of spirits," said Hon. Solon E. Low. A leading Canadian analyst states it is good, and a detailed report is awaited. It is said these power spirits can successfully be blended with gasoline up to 20 per cent ratio with changing carburetors, and it will also eliminate knock.

STRUGGLING DEMOCRACY

Many German-Cansadians have joined the banner of freedom and are fighting along with other freedom-loving men of the Anglo-Saxon world, for justice and liberty. We stand as Germans in Canada, where we can live and toll as free men. We stand by the defence of this free country, because we would like to see all Germany again free and without dictators, who have destroyed the true German character, have spiritually poisoned the German youth and have led them to the battlefields of this war. And while we are doing our duty as loyal citizens of this country, we would like to see after this war the rise of a Germany that would owe her reputation to her great cultural achievements and would again conquer the hearts of other nations by her peaceful toll. We are not only performing a task as free Canadian citizens, but we are also fulfilling a true German mission, which millions of our compatriots in Germany are practically unable to fulfill. This is the great task, imposed on us by history as citizens of a democratic country; to defend democracy, in order to preserve it for us and also to enable it to hold a triumphant entry into German villages and cities. —Der Nordwesten, German-language weekly, Winnipeg.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY'S DECLARATION OF WILL TO VICTORY

Even now, when the Axis powers have revealed their nature in all its barbarism and brutality, a few faint and unrepresentative voices hint at the possibility of compromise with the dictators. We of the British labor movement are astonished that any such idea should anywhere be entertained. We declare once more that we can have no part, directly or indirectly, in a policy of accommodation, and that the necessary prelude to a just peace is total victory. It would be folly and betrayal of those for whom we speak to put any trust in a peace to which Hitler and Mussolini were parties.

Such a declaration of will passed by an overwhelming majority of 2,490,000 to 19,000 at the annual convention in London on June 3, 1941.

POLISH-SCOTCH FRIENDSHIP

On the occasion of the opening of Polish community centre, the city of Glasgow became the scene of a beautiful manifestation of Polish-Scotch friendship. The ceremony of opening the centre was performed by Minister Stanczyk in the presence of Sir P. Dorian, lord-provost of the city. Referring to Minister Stanczyk's acknowledgment of the Scotch hospitality extended to the Poles, Sir P. Dorian declared that the Scotch people were now only paying back a debt of gratitude, contracted some three hundred years ago when Scots in exile had been hospitably received by Poland. The lord-provost further stated with an emphasis that the British people will never tolerate any compromises in the Polish question. —Zwiazowies (Alliance), Polish-language weekly, Toronto.

Good Cattle Fodder

Farmers in Britain Finding Rice Grass Very Valuable

Seeds accidentally taken to England last century in the holds of American sailing ships have given British farmers a valuable wartime cattle fodder.

It is rice grass, or Spartina town, a plant flourishing on coastal sand-dunes or river estuaries where it prevents the washing away of banks by the action of tides and currents. Much rice grass has spread naturally, but in recent years extensive plantations have been made for coastal protection.

The modern English variety, discovered at Hythe, in Southampton water, in 1870, is a cross between the native species and that brought from America, and is so vigorous that whenever it comes into competition with either of its parents it eliminates them completely.

Agricultural experts who have carried out cattle feeding trials with rice grass have found that under good conditions, it makes splendid hay. It is also grazed readily by all classes of livestock.

In New South Wales rice grass has been planted as fodder in the extensive saltlands of the Riverina district, where it abounds the overwash from artesian wells.

Experiments with it are also being carried out in South Africa, India and the Sudan.—St. Thomas Times Journal.

Gift From Concert Artist

Aluminum Practice Violin Donated To U.S. National Defence Campaign

Jascha Heifetz, concert artist, gave an aluminum practice violin to national defense. Accepting the $100 metal fiddle—Heifetz says that when it needs repairing he calls in a plumber to fix it—New York's Mayor La Guardia described the gift as the most precious one received by the government in its aluminum collection campaign.

"I am going to auction this violin off or sell it," the mayor said, "and buy that much aluminum. Any violin that Heifetz has played on will not be destroyed."

Heifetz still has two violins left—his Stradivarius and Guarnerius, valued at $150,000.

Wood Seasoning

Demand For Lumber Has Resulted In Speeding Up Of Process

Wartime demand for dry lumber has given great impetus to the seasoning of lumber in dry kilns, reports the Forest Products Laboratory of the Department of Mines and Resources. The scarcity of certain lines of stock has necessitated the speeding up of the seasoning process to such an extent that even hardwoods are being kiln-dried directly after being sawn from the log. In some cases lumber is now being fabricated into furniture and other commodities a few days after it leaves the mill.

Wood used indoors in Canada must be dried to a point far below that attained in the air-seasoning yards, because of atmospheric conditions in heated buildings during the winter season. Formerly it was the custom with many species of timber to store the green material in yards or sheds for a period of from one to two years followed by a further storage of one to three years in the shop in which the wood was to be worked. With the development of the dry kiln, trade practice for most species required the air-seasoning of the lumber in yards or sheds for at least a year before kiln-drying.

"It's a problem that may be hard to solve completely and satisfactorily but we're constantly working to develop substitutes and much research work is being done," he said.

When silk imports from Japan were banned this year a graduated curtailment scale whereby manufacturers were limited to progressively diminishing quotas of their 1940 production was adopted. This had served to cushion the loss of Japanese silk and the official said Canada probably still has enough to last until the end of the present year.

"Outside of hosiery," he added, "I don't think we have anything to worry about."

Silk lingerie worn by women would be affected, he explained, but he doubted if women would notice any change when rayon was used exclusively to replace silk. Previously, lingerie had been made from all-rayon fabric, a rayon-silk fabric and a pure-silk fabric.

"Now the manufacturers voluntarily have decided to eliminate the last two types of manufacture, and all lingerie will be made from rayon fabric, most of it obtained in Canada," he said.

Rayon would also be used exclusively for bright-print dresses formerly manufactured from pure silk. Silk linings in fur coats would be replaced by rayon lining, but the change was not expected to affect prices. Silk handkerchiefs also would be replaced.

Viscose and acetate rayon fabric, chief Canadian-produced substitutes for silk, are manufactured at factories in Cornwall, Ont., and Drummondville, Que. A viscose rayon plant may also be established in Vancouver.

Red Cross in Newfoundland

Survivors From Torpedoed Merchant Ships Card For

Report of the Canadian Assistant Commissioner in Newfoundland for the month of June brings news of Canadian Red Cross activities there.

Early in the month three more groups of survivors from torpedoed merchant ships were landed in St. John, making with the two groups which arrived at the end of May, a total of about 150 carded for the Red Cross. The Society was notified in advance of the landing of these men so that comfort bags and clothing were on hand to be issued on their arrival, and the station wagon was at the pier to meet them.

No accommodation had previously been prepared so the men were quartered in the Caribou Hut, which necessitated the erecting of beds in most of the recreation rooms. Blankets and pillow cases were loaned from Red Cross supplies to help in this emergency. The hospital cases were visited, and x-ray and for treatment to doctor offices. Minor burns, wounds and infections were dressed daily and many other personal services rendered.

The men were most grateful for the Red Cross clothing and help and were particularly pleased with the comfort bags. Several of the men, desiring to be occupied, spent much time in the new Red Cross headquarters painting furniture, laying flooring, sorting and packing supplies, doing endless odd jobs and being most helpful generally.

British Morale

L. B. Pearson Tells Of Impressions Gained In Britain

L. B. Pearson, former secretary to Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian high commissioner in London, said that he brought back with him from Britain an impression of a morale high, determined, undefeated and steady.

"I've seen some pretty shattering things in London; old women numbed with shock, little children shrinking from uncomprehended horrors; strong men and weak men in the grip of frightening experiences and destroying emotions," said Mr. Pearson. "But I've never heard a person say 'We're too much—let's call it off'."

Mr. Pearson, now assistant under-secretary in the external affairs department, was speaking over a national network of the CBC on the weekly feature "We Have Seen There."

Key West, Fla., is more than 600 miles farther south than Los Angeles, Calif.

Wood Seasoning

Will Be Used To Replace Imports

Eliminate silk stockings from consideration, Ottawa officials said, and Canada's problem of replacing raw silk imports from Japan can be conquered.

"Hosiery still is the one big question mark," said an official in close touch with the silk situation as it affects Canada. He estimated that before the war 85 per cent of Japanese silk imported by the Dominion was used in manufacture of stockings.

"It's a problem that may be hard to solve completely and satisfactorily but we're constantly working to develop substitutes and much research work is being done," he said.

When silk imports from Japan were banned this year a graduated curtailment scale whereby manufacturers were limited to progressively diminishing quotas of their 1940 production was adopted. This had served to cushion the loss of Japanese silk and the official said Canada probably still has enough to last until the end of the present year.

Boat Building Program

912 Craft Of All Sizes To Be Constructed

The munitions and supply department announced that orders have been placed for 912 craft in the department's small boat construction programme.

Nearly 350 boats have been completed in the $8,000,000 programme, the department said. Some 68 smaller shipyards were filling the orders to meet the requirements of the Royal Canadian Navy, Royal Canadian Air Force, Canadian (active and reserve) Royal Navy and British air ministry.

The programme calls for boats of many types, ranging from 9-foot to 120-foot hand-crafted assault boats to 112-foot motor vessels and fast motor torpedo boats.

"FEEL EVER SO MUCH BETTER SINCE I'VE BEEN EATING KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN."

"I suffered from constipation for a month, but relief lasted only a short time. Finally I tried ALL-BRAN, and I never again had trouble with it. I take the delicious cereal every morning," writes H. Mason, St. Faustine Village, Que. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN helps you get at the cause of constipation due to lack of the right kind

"This way," Macias said and, pushing a light switch, uncovered a little pearl-white button. Silently, stealthily, a panel slid aside, revealing a narrow hallway, a door beyond. "It saves a little time."

Aware that his quick glance was losing nothing of her astonishment, Devona tried desperately to control her expression. But this was all so uncanny, so melodramatic. A wall safe, yes. But why a secret passageaway?

"No one but me—and now you know about this passageaway, either," he said as he stood aside, motioned for her to precede him into the tiny little hall. Then he closed the panel behind him and the way to the small door at the end.

"It's terribly exciting," she said as he helped her into the broad front seat of his custom-built convertible coupe. He used the limousine when he had guests and when he wanted Joe to do the driving. He only drove the coupe himself on his frequent mysterious errands alone. Devona wished desperately for Joe and the limousine now. "But what is it for—the secret passage way, I mean," she rattled on, bly-bly.

"Convenience," he said, cryptically. "I'll show you." Another promise of adventure! Devona went a little cold.

Macias slipped into the seat beside her, started the powerful motor with quick, deft movements. "I'm still staying at the Brownstone," she said, chattily, trying to hide her mounting nervousness even from herself. "It's three blocks down and then up to Main St."

"Yes, I know." He turned the corner out of the dark alley into the blinding corridor of light.

Down three flights and then he turned up to Main St. The Brownstone's neon sign blazed at her from down the block. Devona began to let go of some of the terror that had stalked her for the last hour. Silly. He really meant nothing more than to take her home, actually. Just the thoughtfulness of an employer for his overly weary employee. She'd misjudged him. Overrought, she'd let her imagination run away with her.

"Thank you so much," she began—and then stopped short. He was driving right past the Brownstone's modest entrance. . . . But you've passed it!"

His smile answered her first. Then, "I just thought we'd take a little ride first. It's such a lovely evening."

The long, powerful car rapidly put behind it a city block behind them before it turned on the main highway into a quiet street, lined by towering apartment houses. And when Macias turned into a gravelled drive, stopped under the canopied entrance, Devona still was not sure she wasn't having a nightmare.

A liveried doorman opened the door and helped her out.

"Good evening, sir," he said deferentially. "Shall I take your car around?"

"Might, as well," Macias nodded curtly, led the way into the softly lighted foyer.

"Yes, sir."

Behind her, Devona heard the soft purr of the engine as the car slid out of the drive, out of sight. Underfoot, she felt the soft luxury of rich Oriental rugs. "Louis Quatorze" was emblazoned on a heraldic shield ornamenting the doorway, embroidered into the soft draperies. This, she realized as Macias rang for the elevator, was where he lived.

Still numb, afraid to go on, and still more afraid to stop, she stepped into the gold and velvet elevator cage. A moment later, Macias' dark-skinned house-boy was bowing them into an elaborately furnished living room. At first, Devona saw only deep-cushioned, elaborately carved furniture, heavy chests that might have been heirlooms preserved in some rich Spanish nobleman's castle, thick carpets, dozens of massively framed oil paintings. The whole scene heavy with gold and red velvet was obviously costly.

Then she noticed the little table set before the fireplace—a table set for two!

"How nice," she murmured, managed to move calmly toward the fire, to pretend to warm her numb fingers.

"How delicious," she said a little later as the well-trained houseboy served very excellent lobster under glass and very old champagne.

Delicious, stimulating, the food and wine lent her courage—a courage she realized only too well of which she'd have great need if she carried this through without blundering.

Because, of course, the excellent little supper, the warming fire, the quiet intimacy of this elaborate room were only strains of the overture before the curtain went up on the main action.

Her eyes wandered over the handsome grand piano, the massive lamps, vases that were huge, costly. Everything the biggest, the most that money could buy. Symbols of Macias' power to buy and buy and buy.

She came back to the situation with a jolt. And she was next on his shopping list!

"Well, and do you like it?" he asked, and the question told her he had missed none of her silent study of his room.

"It's very—elaborate," she said honestly. "The effect is—overwhelming. So many priceless, beautiful things."

Then, to avoid that dark-eyed scrutiny, she rose suddenly, crossed the big window behind her. Below, London's lights in its constellation of satellite cities seemed a carpet of shimmering lights as far as she could see. "And your view, too. It's simply breathtaking."

Macias had followed her, stood now just behind her shoulder. "You appreciate beautiful things, don't you?"

Devona shrugged. "I enjoy them." And then, because talking seemed safer than silence, "My father taught me, really. If it hadn't been for his tremendous interest in the arts, I would probably have been delayed for an hour or two. When milk must be shipped long distances without adequate protection during warm weather, immediate cooling may make all the difference of being accepted or rejected at the plant."

The speed at which milk can be cooled depends upon the rate at which the heat in the milk is passed on to something else which will absorb it. Some materials absorb heat much more rapidly than others. Air absorbs heat very slowly. Consequently, if a can of warm milk is placed in a refrigerator room where the air temperature is at freezing point, it will be about 12 hours before the heat of the milk has been removed to 50 degrees. This explains the time required to cool milk.

Flag Made In Conquered Poland Is Dedicated To Victory

A romantic tale of the smuggling out of Poland of a flag which finally was presented to a Polish flying squadron in Scotland July 18 was told by an official at the Polish consulate at Ottawa.

"Some of the drama and color of this strange war is bound up in the 18 months of travel that flag made before it got to Scotland," he said.

This is the story:

"At the beginning of the war a Polish aviator who had escaped from his country to France was stationed at Lyon. He managed to get word to a Polish woman living in his native town in Russian-occupied Poland asking her to embroider a special flag for the Polish fliers in exile. He sent the design to her, saying the 'colors' would bring the Polish pilots 'benediction and victory'."

The design showed the image of Saint Mary of Ostrobrama of the cathedral of Vilno, with the lilies of the crown of the Royal Polish Dynasty. This was the emblem under which Poland, Lithuania and Ruthenia were united, and the Lithuanian Jagiellon family furnished several remarkable sovereigns for Poland and Hungary.

On the other side of the flag were the emblems of the different units of the Polish Air Force and the motto 'God, Honor, Country.'

Once the flag was embroidered it had to be sent from Poland to Lyon for presentation. After completion it was secretly dedicated in a religious ceremony before the image of the Virgin Mary in one of Poland's cathedrals.

In spite of Soviet and German vigilance the flag was smuggled across the frontiers, through Germany itself, and into Belgium.

Then the Nazis invaded the Low Countries. The flag disappeared.

After a thousand complications it was smuggled out of occupied Belgium and finally reached Britain where, in the presence of high-ranking British and Polish officials it was presented to the Polish aviators and dedicated to victory.

"It is a story worthy of the age of chivalry," the Polish consul said officially.

WHEN TOO TIRED FOR FUN NERVES MAY BE TO BLAME

Her Energy Used Up In Worry

Too tired—no matter what gay plans are afoot! But why—if she's tired, "Nerves," perhaps?

If you feel exhausted all the time but have nothing organically wrong with you, you're probably the high-strung type, letting worry eat up all your energy.

And just because you are high-strung, you could be one of the most charming and vital people if you would turn those inward energies outward.

How to do it? Try to understand what's making you nervous. Is there some problem you've tried to ignore?

An unsolved problem, you know, can be as alive and destructive as a disease germ. The thing to do is to force it to the surface. Out in the open, it can't do its damage.

But ignore it, grow still more tired and irritable, and you'll drive away friends and family instead. You'll be a shadow on the road to a nervous breakdown.

Our "32-page" booklet explains causes of "nerves" and "nervous" symptoms such as indigestion, insomnia, hypertension, etc., and gives a simple program to overcome them. Gives right diet, body care for sound nerves, vitality.

It's 15¢ in coins for your copy of "Overcoming 'Nerves' and Every-Day Health Problems" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newsprint Union, 175 McDermot Ave., E., Winnipeg, Man.

Vitamins For Soldiers

Use Would Keep Eyesight In Better Condition

Proper supplies of vitamin in the soldier's diet will not only maintain his general health but may save his life in action by keeping his eyesight in good condition. It was stated in documents tabled for a parliamentary sub-committee on war expenditures.

Brig. R. M. Gossline, director of army medical service, gave the committee copies of circular letters sent to all district medical officers.

Officers were reminded that if a person did not receive an adequate supply of vitamin C, resistance against disease was lowered. A moderate lack of vitamin C was probably responsible in the development of mouth sores, in mouth ulcers, in trench mouth.

Raw cabbage and raw turnips are excellent sources of vitamin C, but if the cooking is prolonged, over 90 per cent. of the vitamin originally present is lost. Potatoes contain a small amount of vitamin C.

Tomatoes were considered most important as a source of vitamin C.

For the best level of health, 5,000 to 8,000 units daily of vitamin A are required, and the ordinary diet of the Canadian army furnishes 6,638 units daily.

FRAUD ON BANK CLERKS

One of the mysteries of political life in this country is that the so-called unemployment insurance law was precipitated through the house of commons with little or no criticism, and even with cheers, from opposition benches. Possibly organized labor, which is mainly employed on an hourly basis, is pleased at the moment because such trades will, under present arrangements, benefit from the weekly contributions of bank clerks and retail clerks and others in the lower paid group who seldom are out of employment.

An immense new bookkeeping job has been foisted on business and employers generally, for if the revenue were demanded from workers in order to help with the war effort or to brake inflationary tendencies, the machinery for the collection of the national defense tax would have sufficed both for business and government. But every large business must add to payroll staff and every small business must submit to an additional nuisance. And Ottawa payrolls are swelled by some thousands of persons—perhaps 6,000 at a time when help is scarce.

Canada adopts a scheme that was a failure in Britain. In Britain, a depression proved the unemployment fund inadequate and even those who had not paid into it were given weekly grants of equivalent amounts. This would be the condition in Canada in the event of further unemployment, for the principle has been established that the workless shall not be allowed to starve. But opposition members of the commons are so in awe of Mr. King's political acumen that they cheer the announcement of the inauguration of the scheme.

People who are struggling to make ends meet today are paying into a fund from which there is only the remotest chance of benefiting. It has been ruled, for instance, that college students with summer jobs must pay, although these boys when they finish college will be mainly either in accepted employment or engaged in a professional activity of their own account or soon, because of their superior education, beyond the $2,000 class. Yet out of money earned for paying next year's tuition, they must help the fund which pleases only those who are engaged in seasonal employment.

The scheme cannot be classed even as a compulsory savings scheme for the reason that the money once paid into the fund can be recovered by the payer only if he or she is ousted from a job because there is no work. A stenographer who works ten years and then gets married can get nothing back. A youth who slowly makes his way upward beyond the $2,000 class cannot benefit. The beneficiaries are

LOCKING TO THE NEW ORDER

Over and above all concern with his narrow rights as such, the enlightened British worker in field and factory is conscious that he is in the front line of the fight for democracy. "I am often asked by visitors to Great Britain," said Mr. Bevin, to quote again from his speech to the national conference of social workers of the United States, "to explain why labor over here is so wholeheartedly supporting the national effort in this great struggle. My answer is that we regard this war as a righteous one. We know there can be no material gain . . . but we are determined to preserve our spiritual inheritance. We will not be driven back into slavery. The great driving power within us urging us on is the spirit of the crusade against evil . . . Perhaps the outstanding thing of this war," he went on, "has been the courage and resilience of the common people. British labor, then, will never yield."

TRAVEL BY TRAIN

One way to save gasoline and oil for war purposes during the present summer would be to go on holiday trips by train rather than by motor car. It would be no hardship to let the locomotive engineer do the driving.

There is much to be said for motor trips in fine weather, but the modern air-conditioned passenger train has advantages, too. On a holiday trip from Alberta to the coast, at least a day each way can be saved in making the journey by train.

The motor traveller has to stop somewhere for the night, or for several nights. It may be at a more or less comfortable hotel or an overnight cabin, but in the meanwhile the traveller by train can be comfortably asleep in a Pullman berth; in the morning he is ahead of the motorist by about one day's driving. While the motorist is waiting around for ham and eggs, the train traveller is watching the scenery glide past while enjoying breakfast in the dining car.

The relative cost is an item, of course, but the railways are offering reduced fares for the holiday season. Perhaps the Dominion oil controller could induce the railways to do more to compete with the highways for passenger traffic; but the saving of oil and gasoline for war purposes should decide the patriotic Canadian to travel by train, even where it may cost a little more than travelling by motor car. —Ex.

WHAT HAPPENS TO PEOPLE WHO QUIT TAKING THE PAPER

If you are tempted to stop your subscription to the local paper, you may profit by reading the following story which workers of the Nebraska Writers' Project, WPA, found in the Arapahoe Pioneer, Dec. 26, 1879.

A certain man got mad at the editor and stopped his paper. The next week he sold his corn at four cents below the market price; then, his property was sold for taxes because he didn't read the sheriff's sales; he lost $10 betting on Mollie McCarthy ten days after another horse had won the race; he was arrested and fined $8 for going hunting on Sunday, simply because he didn't know it was Sunday; and he paid $300 for a lot of forged notes that had been advertised two weeks and the public cautioned not to negotiate them.

He then paid a big negro with a foot like a Derrick to kick him all the way to the newspaper office, where he paid four years' subscription in advance, and made the editor sign an agreement to knock him down and rob him if he ever ordered his paper stopped again.

BACK TO WALKING

When the government asks us to stop using gasoline, it means just that. It means that unnecessary automobile driving has got to stop. It means that hundreds of thousands of Canadians who are in the habit of driving to work in the morning and driving back at night have got to walk, or use buses or street cars. It means that housewives who drive down town to do their shopping must do it on foot. It means that the family airing on hot nights must be done without the use of the car. It means that one of the deeply-ingrained habits of this country and this continent has got to be rudely uprooted. We have got to do what our fathers did—and walk.

Canadians are not finding this easy to do. The gasoline habit is deep down in them. It is in many homes the sole expensive luxury that is indulged in. People enjoy moving from place to place sitting down. They have done it in increasing measure for more than twenty years. Now the demands of the war make it essential to cut the habit off. If Canadians do not change this habit of theirs of their own accord, the government is going to do it for them. Gasoline will be rationed, and the people who do not really need it will get none at all. —Winnipeg Free Press.

THE BATTLE OF THE UKRAINE

Why did Hitler march into the Ukraine? Perhaps in order to make her independent? He who believes it, deserves compassion. Hitler does not even think of the Ukrainian independence. He invaded the Ukrainian territory in order to get bread, coal, oil and metals, and all those things, with which that country abounds. Even if, in the case of a successful occupation of the Ukraine by the Germans, Hitler would create a Ukrainian government, who could deny it that that government would be completely dependent on the German will?—Kanadiyky Farmer, Ukrainian-language weekly, Winnipeg.

A VERY REMARKABLE SUIT

The talkative individual was drawing attention to the suit of clothes he was wearing. "This is a very remarkable suit," he announced.

"It looks like an ordinary piece of goods to me," said one of his listeners. "What's so remarkable about it?"

"Well," said the talkative man, "the wool was grown in Australia; the cloth was woven in Scotland; the thread was made in Northern Ireland; the suit was made in Montreal, and I bought it from a store in Vancouver."

"What's so strange about that?" persisted his listener.

"Why," said the gabby one, "isn't it remarkable that so many people can make a living out of something that I've never paid for?"

Here's one for Mr. Aberhart. He really never heard of this or he would have incorporated it into his new money reform scheme.

TO KILL POTATO BUGS

An amusing item recently was that of a newspaper publishing a new method of killing potato bugs, as told by a rural reader. It was to build little stone walls around each potato hill, then put just sufficient lubricating oil on the leaves of the plants so that the bugs would drop off and dash out their brains on the stones.

"Is Milton here?" whispered the dying man.

"Yes, poppa."

"Is Moe here?"

"Yes, poppa."

"Is Abe here?"

"Yes, poppa."

With a scream of anguish, poppa sat up in bed. "Then who in hell's looking after the store?"

BANFF-JASPER HIGHWAY

When the temperature is hovering between 90 degrees and 100 degrees Fahrenheit, one is apt to wonder if there is any cool place left on earth outside the polar regions. At such a time the lure of the Columbia Ice Fields is well nigh irresistible. The completion of the Banff-Jasper Highway last year made accessible to motorists this magnificent spectacle, a remnant of the great Ice Age. At one point the tongue of Athabasca Glacier reaches down to within a few hundred feet of the roadside. Here many motorists leave their cars and enjoy the refreshing experience of walking over the ice in mid-summer. Glaciers are only one of the many scenic attractions the Banff-Jasper Highway has opened up to motorists.

The accompanying photographs depict some of the superb alpine scenery along this 186-mile mountain road linking two of Canada's greatest national parks—Banff and Jasper.

Harry Zabuk, of Calgary, was instantly killed on Friday morning when struck by a falling tree while cutting timber near Lynx Creek, southeast of Burns. He was employed by the Burns Lumber Company.

The average roads inspector nowadays is so darned well fed up that he actually occupies more than half of the highway. Why not bring him down to minimum production size to compete with the ordinary man's salary?

"You pedestrians walk about as if you bought the street," said the angry motorist.

"Why not? You motorists drive about as if you'd paid for your cars."

"Bridget, will you go over and see how old Mrs. Jones is this morning?" Bridget returned in twenty minutes. "Sure and she's seventy-two years and ten months old, ma'am."

Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacPherson, Peggie and Fraser, returned this morning from an extended holiday with relatives at Minotona, Manitoba.

Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt held a momentous meeting this week, at an undisclosed point at sea, agreeing on an eight-point plan for post-war policy. The meeting put an end to more than a week of speculation over the whereabouts of the two world-famous figures.

The wife was working out a crossword puzzle. Suddenly she turned to her husband and asked: "What is a female sheep?"

"Ewe," he replied. And that started the unpleasantness that spoiled the whole evening.

"Friend: Was your husband cool when the burglars were breaking in the other night?"

"Spouse: He must have been. He was shivering all over."

Jock: "Sandy, supposing I was too hot & it air ye had a bottle of whisky. Wed ye know down an' pit the bottle tae ma lips?"

Sandy: "Nae, I wudna." I'd bring ye tae yer feet quicker standin' up in front of ye an' drinkin' it masel."

New Bride: "Darling, do you know there will soon be three of us sharing our little lovenest?"

He: "Not Are you sure?"

She: "Positively. I had a letter from mother this morning, and she is coming to live with us."

A new pastor was hunting up isolated church people. Calling at one cottage, he asked a woman who came to the door, if there were Anglicans in the neighborhood.

"Weel, sir, Ah winae rightly know," she replied, "but my husband shot some strange creature the other night and its skin is on the barn door. Ye michi care tae tak' a look at it."

French River and Devil's Gap Lure Visitors

A cottage on the shore of Devil's Gap, a lake with opportunities for fishing, boating, swimming and other warm-weather recreation provides the kind of summer holiday which is demanded in Canada. But living in a cottage sometimes means a lot of work owing to the lack of city conveniences, which is the reason for the great popularity of such resorts as Devil's Gap and French River. The visitors live in cottages which are as well served as hotel suites.

Adults Or Children

"Either we must act like adults or we must expect to be treated like children," declared one of the younger prominent business men in one of the Western Canadian cities recently.

The declaration was inspired by the comparatively recent decision of the Dominion oil controller to curtail the hours in which gasoline may be sold, together with other restrictions designed to bring home to the people of this country the imperative need for conserving gasoline, fuel oils and other derivatives of petroleum in order that more fuel may be released for driving aeroplanes, tanks and other weapons in the battle against Nazism.

The statement of this young business man was not inspired alone by the comparatively moderate restrictions imposed by the oil controller, but by apparent evidence on all sides of a tendency on the part of too many to fail to appreciate the very urgent need for conservation of gasoline and to disregard the general appeal to the public to reduce pleasure driving by at least 50 per cent, which accompanied the announcement of the imposition of the restrictions.

As this same young man said, it would be a sad commentary on the practical operation of our democracy if we are not willing to sacrifice a few pleasures in order to preserve it; if, as has been suggested, it should be necessary to impose a system of gasoline rationing in order to enforce conservation of this essential war material; if, in other words, we have to be treated like children, because we do not act on our own initiative like grown-ups are expected to act.

One Of Two Reasons

If the appeal to curb our appetites for driving automobiles in pursuit of pleasure does not receive the general response which the cause requires; it can only be for one of two reasons: Either the need for conserving of gasoline is not as fully appreciated as it should be or we are loath to forego a few non-essential pleasures as one of the contributions that can so easily be made to the war effort. If the latter, can we conscientiously subscribe to the theory that we are waging an "all-out" effort? Can we hope and expect to strike the knockout blow that must be delivered if victory is to crown our efforts and if we are not to become bondsmen in the House of Hitler?

There should be no misunderstanding as to the need for the very modest restrictions that have been imposed so far. There should be no misapprehension as to the necessity of going farther than these restrictions as a temporary effort to meet every reason why we should "act like adults" and demonstrate that the democratic way of life is a living thing. It is inconceivable that we would not do so, if we understood the reason and appreciated the dire necessity.

There is no one who understands the situation who will not subscribe to Churchill's declaration that the ultimate outcome of this war lies in the decision of the Battle of the Atlantic, the fight on the water between this continent and Great Britain. If Britain is defeated there, the life line of the Empire and of democracy is severed. Supplies of war material and food to the front line are cut off. Gasoline is the first requisite, first to the winning of the Battle of the Atlantic and subsequently to the winning of the world. Every Canadian who burns a gallon of gasoline unnecessarily, in the light of these facts, should ask himself: "Am I willing to do this when the gasoline I am using for personal enjoyment, might be used to save a ship carrying food to rationed comrades in Britain from being sunk to the bottom of the ocean, or prevent a boat carrying our gallant boys and their fighting equipment from being destroyed?"

Works No Injury

Figures have been made public showing that consumption of gasoline in Canada far outstrips production and this is also true of the balance between consumption and production in Western Canada, and what is more domestic consumption is increasing by leaps and bounds. It is true that a great deal of the gasoline and fuel oil consumed in Western Canada is required for agricultural and industrial purposes, but it is also true that a considerable percentage is used for the pursuit of pleasure and most of the latter period of time, it could be eliminated without doing anyone an injury.

The excess of consumption over production has to be imported, either by ocean or lake tankers or by tank cars on the railways from the United States. The tankers are urgently needed to convey gasoline overseas to provide fuel for fighters and bombers and tank cars are needed for the Battle of the Atlantic and tank cars from the United States should be released for the use of gasoline required for the rapidly accelerating defence measures on the other side of the international boundary. Moreover, the fact should not be overlooked that every Canadian dollar sent into the United States for the purchase of gasoline to be used in pleasure driving could be utilized to much greater advantage in the prosecution of the Canadian war effort.

We sing: "There'll always be an England." Yes, we believe that, but we must also believe that it will be so, only if we help to make it so.

Made Long Voyage

Ferryboats Built on Clyde Reached Turkish Waters Unescorted

The Brockville Recorder and Times says: One of the longest unescorted voyages of the war must have been made by the seven ferryboats built on the Clyde which are reported to have reached Turkish waters. Although these vessels are not more than 140 feet in length, they travelled 14,000 miles through dangerous and often stormy seas without escort, to reach the destination.

At 8 days at a time the vessels were out of sight of land and three times the craft had to turn back because of storms. But every one of them, in the hands of British crews, arrived safely in the Bosphorus.

New Radio Alert Receiver

Would Replace Sirens In Air Raid Warnings

Major F. H. La Guardia of New York expressed belief that the ringing of a bell in the new radio alert receiver, which responds automatically to an inaudible signal, would replace sirens as air raid warnings.

La Guardia, national director of civilian defence, engaged in a trans-Atlantic conversation by radio with Maj. F. W. Jackson, chief of the London defence headquarters, and W. H. Brett, chief operational officer of the London civilian defence.

A test of the new device, which summons listeners to their receivers even though the sets are not turned on, was made earlier. David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, took part in the demonstration, described the successful results for the British officials.

The London defence heads were assured by Sarnoff that England would be permitted to manufacture the special type receiver.

Sarnoff said the receiver rang a bell to summon listeners and shut off when an all-clear signal was flashed. It functions 24 hours a day. He said the device is the size of a portable radio, could be attached to standard radio sets, and manufactured in quantity for "somewhere around $15 or perhaps less."

A Giant Flywheel

Made in Britain For Use in South African Mine

In two minutes a load of eight tons can be brought up from a mine 6,000 feet down by an electric winder sent out from Great Britain to one of the City Deep mines in South Africa. Two similar equipments completed for South Africa carry drums 36 feet across, believed to be the biggest ever made for electric winders. Forty tons is the weight of the single piece flywheel in cast steel enclosed in each motor-generator set for equalization purposes.

The same engineering shops have turned out many other jobs during the past year, including large turbines for India, Canada and Australia. They are now building four additional "recorders" for the Natal section of the South African Railways similar to those supplied a few years ago for the main line electrification between Durban and Vryheid—the largest system in the world operating with inverted rectifiers.

The Great Attraction

When Lance Bomber Idwal Jones and Olive Payne were married at Shorebournes, Essex, girls outnumbered men guests by six to one. This notice, put on the door of the parish hall, solved the problem:

"Men urgently needed to dance Free beer."

So far as regulating and conserving gasoline over here is concerned the surface hasn't been pricked yet. In Bargoed, South Wales, a motorist who stopped his automobile when stopping the engine was fined one shilling on a charge of wasting fuel.

Fighting Fires

A.R.P. Training Provides Real Thrills In B.C. Shelters

On a recent night at North Vancouver, B.C., the district A.R.P. Warden and his helpers had turned out for practice. Squads of auxiliary fire fighters, engineers, police, ambulance sections and stretcher bearers were all set for a training demonstration, when suddenly a violent electric storm broke. Lightning flashed and the alarm was sounded.

Reports of three fires came in immediately to A.R.P. headquarters and to the Fire Hall from wardens all over the city and district. A.R.P. squads already assembled in Lynn Valley, swung into action, manned the fire truck and in a few minutes were on the scene of the first fire at a small sawmill on Seymour Pipeline Road. It was soon under control. Lightning started two small fires up Mountain Highway and these were successfully dealt with by Forestry and A.R.P. workers. The next move was to Seymour River where lightning had struck a tree and started a fire that appeared likely to cause serious trouble. The Greater Vancouver Water District squads had this in hand.

Although primarily a war time experiment, A.R.P. training is designed so that the service can be adapted to cope with emergencies that would not ordinarily come within its province.

"The training these men have had in recent months stand them in good stead in this emergency," said Chief Warden Capt. G. R. Bates. "All of the squads acted like veteran fire fighters."

Cargo Shipping

United States Plans Greatly Increased Tonnage Next Year

Heating news came from Washington this week. It told that according to revised estimates United States shippers in 1942 will turn out 5,140,000 gross tons of cargo shipping.

That is more cargo shipping than German subs and bombers have managed to sink during the past twelve months. It is far more tonnage than the annual toll of the Nazis on the basis of June 1941.

It may be, of course, that these United States estimates will not be met entirely by production. Also, the great bulk of these United States ships may not be available until near the close of 1942. Nevertheless the revelation here is that, so far as the battle of the Atlantic is concerned, time is all against Germany.

In other words, if Britain is to be starved out the starving must be done in the next six or eight months. The starving, at the moment, seems far from probable—Ottawa Journal.

The world will probably witness the greatest volcanic eruption of all time when emancipation comes to the European nations now in Nazi chains. The lava of hate for Hitlerism will then pour over Germany.

It was the little people who made the decision that Hitler was to be resisted to the last ditch—not the government.

The British Navy

Vital Essence Of Sea Power Never More Fully Revealed

There is no doubt whatsoever about the magnitude of the Navy's far-flung job in this war. When all has been said, and most justly said, about the necessity of complete co-operation between the three arms, who must act, administer and fight like a band of brothers, it remains true that at the end of all we live by the sea, the might die by the sea, and shall win by the sea.

The vital essence of sea power was never more fully revealed to all who might have doubted it than it has been during these 22 months. And yet the British Navy since has had to do what five other navies did in the last 20 years and to face as nimble "navvies" which though fought with it, is a terrific task, a crushing responsibility.

It has not been made easier by the fact that already on four occasions the Navy has had to raise its own fate and endure heavy losses in succouring the Army. There is no self-sacrifice record should never be forgotten. The Navy (London).

Fastest Man On Wings

British Test Pilot Is Given The George Medal

The fastest man on wings—though he is shy of the title—is Flight Lieut. Philip Gadsden Lucas, chief test pilot of the Hawker Aircraft Company.

He received the George Medal for what he himself modestly describes as a "grand thrill." The grand thrill took place when he had to make a forced landing in a new and untried plane—with all the drive of its 2,300 horsepower engines. The machine, the Typhoon, newest and deadliest of British fighters, pulled safely out of the dive and was landed.

BRITAIN READY FOR ANY ATTACK IN MIDDLE EAST

London.—Britain is much stronger and ready for offensive action in the Middle East where, the informant declared, Britain already has halted a Nazi drive toward the Suez canal. This was a reference to the defence of Egypt's western frontier, west of Suez, and the dominance Britain has won in Syria and Iraq, on the other bank of the Suez.

Now, he said, the British military position from the border of Turkey to the border of Libya is so strong that "the Axis is talking nervously of British assaults on Libya, Sicily or the Greek islands."

This source acknowledged that the Germans still held the initiative in the Russian campaign although, he said, the German high command is gravely concerned over "the slowness of the advance and the very heavy casualties."

The worldwide military situation, he declared, is summarized as follows:

"British blows against the Germans at Salmun, on the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, although apparently indecisive, have taken such a toll of German armored fighting vehicles that the possibility of a large scale German attack toward Alexandria and Cairo has been virtually ruled out."

Tobruk, Libyan strongpoint still in British hands, lies as a constant threat to the flank of any major Axis offensive into Egypt.

The triumph in Iraq was one of the first brakes put on the vast panzer movement with which the Germans planned to take Suez and the Caucasian oil fields of Russia.

Other brakes were the fierce resistance of Yugoslavia and Greece which cost the Germans "time and heavy casualties," and Crete which used up such German forces as air troops which would have been vital for attacks on Syria and Iraq.

The British and their French invasion of the French mandate of Syria was "the final blow to the whole German Middle Eastern plan."

The remaining Italian troops in East Africa, specifically Ethiopia, are ready for the taking. There are pockets of resistance at Gondar (3,000 Europeans and 8,000 natives) and at Uelchot (3,000 Europeans and 1,000 natives) but these are expected to be speedily mopped up, solidifying the East African section of the Middle East lines.

Invasion Danger

Bombers Could Cross Ocean In 11 To 12 Hours.

New York.—Lt.-Col. George R. Hutchinson, who has been ferrying bombers to Britain for a year, told a Rotary Club luncheon that seven hundred bombers could cross the ocean in 11 or 12 hours and drop enemy parachute troops on major eastern United States cities.

Hutchinson, flying the Atlantic several times in both directions, Hutchinson said he was convinced that as many as 10,000 troops could be dropped on strategic eastern airports, which are not protected by barrage balloons, air raid detectors, or anti-aircraft batteries.

German Post Seized

Heavy Casualties Suffered By Nazis During Raid From Tobruk

Cairo.—Tobruk patrols which again raided Axis lines about that encircled Libyan port seized a German post and inflicted heavy casualties when the Germans attempted a counter-attack, a British communiqué announced.

South African pilots flying American-made Maryland bombers made a series of attacks on motor transport workshops and assembly plant at Derna, a Royal Air Force command, he said.

Offer Services To Bengal

London.—United States citizens in India were reported to have offered the Bengal government their services in civil defence work, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported. The BBC said the offer was gratefully accepted by the government.

Milk On Ration List

London.—Milk will be rationed in Britain and the entire population must register for the distribution, it was announced. The date rationing will be effective was not disclosed.

Sales of farm implements and equipment in Canada during 1940 equaled $47,585,154, an increase of 40 per cent over 1939.

Nazi Bomber Talks

In Taken Prisoner When His Plane Crashed In Flames

London.—"I always knew there were no laurels to be won over England," declared the wireless operator of a Nazi bomber taken prisoner after the plane was brought down in flames.

A British night fighter crept up behind the plane as it swept in over England with its load of bombs. From short range the fighter's guns blazed and the bomber caught fire. The Nazi airman had time to strap on a parachute and leap to safety.

"Before we started on this trip, I had a presentiment that it would be unlucky," the airman told his captor. "The pilot was very nervous and said that the whole flight was a mistake."

The bomber was flying at 19,000 feet heading over England when the wireless operator, glancing back, thought he could see a "shadow" coming up behind.

"I said to myself, 'I mustn't make a mistake—you don't want to tell the others it's a night fighter when it may not be one,'" the Nazi related.

"I took another look and then saw that it was still behind us and about 650 yards away. I switched on the inter-communication and shouted: 'night fighter astern and to starboard.'

"I told the pilot he ought to turn off to the right and then perhaps the fighter would miss us, though the moon was as bright as day."

"The pilot did not turn off and the night fighter came closer and closer. It gave us a few seconds. Then there was an explosion in our aircraft and bits flew all over the plane."

The mechanic shouted he was bleeding to death or something like that. I had no time to attend to him—things moved too fast."

"He probably caught the whole dose but it didn't touch me probably because of armor plating. I still had everything on, oxygen mask and all the trappings."

"I looked out again for the night fighter and saw him banking away."

"On that evening we had taken over a brand new aircraft with new parachutes. Mine didn't fit, but I struggled into it and it opened the escape hatch and jumped."

Governor-General's Tour

Will Make A Short Trip Through Western Canada

Ottawa.—The Governor-General and Princess Alice will make a short tour to the west leaving Ottawa Sunday, Aug. 17, it was announced at government house. They will visit Saskatoon, Moose Jaw and Swift Current, Brandon, Fort William and Port Arthur.

The objects of the tour are to see something of the war activities in these areas and to study agricultural developments in parts of Saskatchewan and Manitoba," the announcement said.

After the tour the Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice will go to Quebec.

Listen To Broadcasts

People Of Europe Get News From BBC Service

London.—F. W. Ogilvie, director-general of the British Broadcasting Corporation, said in a radio discussion with Sir Frederic White that the people of Europe are listening more and more to BBC broadcasts despite Nazi orders forbidding them to do so, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported. Mr. Ogilvie said there are now six overseas services in 39 languages, with a daily output of about a quarter of a million words.

Brand Traitors' Homes

Allied Sympathizers In Occupied France Asked To Mark Doors

London.—A Free French speaker broadcasted over BBC facilities asked Allied sympathizers in occupied France to mark a "T" on the door of any "unscrupulous traitor."

The speaker listed among traitors an inhabitant of the town of Sover, near Bayonne, who recently betrayed to the Germans a French-Canadian pilot of the Royal Air Force who had been hiding under the protection of the whole local population after bailing out from a blazing aircraft.

Post-War Reconstruction

Some Of The Aspects Of Post-War Reconstruction Have Already Formed The Subject Of Exchanges Of Views Of An Exploratory Character

between the United States and British governments, an authoritative source said.

Battle Of Atlantic

Is Yet To Be Won Opinion Of Naval Officer

Ottawa.—Any suggestion the Battle of the Atlantic is over or nearly so is not only optimistic, Lt.-Col. K. S. MacLachlan, deputy minister for naval services, said in an interview.

He returned from Britain a few days ago after consultations with officials of the British admiralty.

The Battle of the Atlantic is receiving the closest attention of thoroughly competent people who are determined to win, but: "I did not meet anyone who said the job was licked yet," he said.

The struggle to keep the trans-Atlantic ship route open despite the efforts of enemy submarines was a difficult one and there could be no relaxation of vigilance. The men in charge of British naval activity in the Atlantic had a full appreciation of the ingenuity and resources of the enemy.

SOVIET ARMY IS DEFENDING ROAD TO LENINGRAD

Moscow—Mentioning for the first time in days the German-Finnish attempt to smash the Leningrad front from the north across the Kandalaksha isthmus, Soviet Russia reported that the Red army is fighting stubbornly against the invaders in the Kandalaksha sector, about 75 miles north of Leningrad.

The same war report, issued by the Soviet information bureau, told of continued bitter battles in the familiar Smolensk and Bel Tserkov sectors of the centre and south where official Soviet accounts have told of counter-attacks held up the Nazi advance.

Only in those areas and in the Estonian sector, where the Germans are trying to put the squeeze on Leningrad from the southwest, is there major fighting, the Russian communiqué said.

Kakismaki is a Lake Ladoga port which the Russians gained in the 1939-40 war with Finland.

With a new development on a front hitherto comparatively quiet, official accounts reported the Red army as counter-attacking and sustained fashions on the central and southern approaches to Moscow and Kiev in a deepening battle of movement on a 350-mile front.

The Soviet forces met the new German offensive in the Ukraine with the same sort of counterpart which has blocked the road to Moscow from Smolensk, the Russians said. The first communiqué told of battles ranging on day and night, in the wide, fiercely-contested sectors of Smolensk and Bel Tserkov, south of Kiev. Moreover, it was implied that well-entrenched Russian armies in the north were turning back successive German assaults: waves at Kholm, midway between Smolensk and Leningrad, and in Estonia.

THE DUKE OF KENT

Protect India

Under No Condition Will Britain Leave Country Undeclared

London.—George Ridley, member of parliament for Clay Cross division of Derbyshire, said that under no condition would Great Britain leave India to defend herself if she is attacked.

Mr. Ridley was the speaker on "Britain Speaks" a British Broadcasting Corporation feature.

"It is quite obvious that Britain could not leave India," he said, "and Britain will not leave India until she can look after herself."

India has 3,000 miles of coastline and a northern frontier of some 5,000 miles, and could not look after this alone.

"Great Britain wants democracy for all the people she is responsible for," he said. "At the beginning of this century she dominated India, but to-day domination is no more."

For War Effort

Walt Disney Cartoons To Be In Series Of Films

Ottawa.—The Walt Disney studios, creators of animated cartoons, will co-operate with the Canadian government in producing films to help support Canada's war effort, Chairman J. T. Thorson of the national film board, said.

Studio representatives have arrived here to discuss two projects on which the Disney studios expect to start work immediately.

A series of films for the War Savings campaign, featuring all Disney's most famous characters, is first on the list. The second project is a military training film in cartoon technique to be made for the minister of national defence.

BOMBING TRIP TO GERMANY IS FULL OF THRILLS

London.—The men who played leads in a British documentary film "Target for To-night" staged a fiery repetition of their movie raid in an actual German air raid.

Referring to operations a week ago by British planes based on a carrier in the Arctic, he said: "Activities of our fleet at Kirkenes (Norway) and elsewhere in the north show how close is our physical contact with the Russian forces."

In Close Contact

Units Of British And Russian Fleets Co-operating In North

London.—Close contact between the British and Russian fleets has been established in far northern waters, it was announced in the House of Commons by Clement Attlee, deputy house leader.

Referring to operations a week ago by British planes based on a carrier in the Arctic, he said: "Activities of our fleet at Kirkenes (Norway) and elsewhere in the north show how close is our physical contact with the Russian forces."

Occupied Royal Box

London—George Winant, United States ambassador to Great Britain, and Mrs. Winant were in the royal box at Albert Hall to listen to a concert aimed at furthering consular relations between Great Britain and the United States.

At Toronto Exhibition

Toronto—General de Gaulle's Free French government will be represented at the Canadian National exhibition this year, it is announced.

The men who played leads in a British documentary film "Target for To-night" staged a fiery repetition of their movie raid in an actual German air raid.

Three of the men who were in the ministry of information pictures flew to Japan, which has been reported seeking bases in Thailand.

Political circles here held that concern in Britain and the United States for Thailand's independence should deter Japan from provoking a crisis.

WILL PLAN TO GIVE MILITARY AID TO THAILAND

London.—The extent of British military aid to Thailand in case that little country is attacked by Japanese forces massed in neighboring Indo-China will be governed by the willingness of the United States to cooperate with action stronger than economic blockades, it was stated authoritatively in London.

Moreover, it was added that this policy for a collaboration beyond both diplomatic and economic measures applies not only to Thailand but to the whole of the east.

Thailand itself is expected by British informants are not able to see such resistance in an optimistic light. The Thai air force, it is felt here, would worry the Japanese and the Thai army could offer only brief, though spirited, resistance.

Japan's probable alternative to military invasion, which would put Japanese troops on the frontiers of Burma and the Malay states above Singapore, was said here to be infiltration by "outcasts" of economic domination of the Nazi pattern.

While British diplomatic masters seek to avoid the mention of possible military measures, despatches from Singapore indicated that British, Australian and India forces were preparing for any Japanese thrust in Thailand.

"Thailand is extremely grateful to those offering her protection, but begs to decline same with thanks," the official Thai radio commentator declared in Bangkok in apparent reference to Japanese allegations of British-American machinations aimed at Thailand.

The commentator, without naming names, said that as for reports of possible occupation of strategic bases in Thailand "on the part of those offering protection," Thailand possesses adequate officers and men to look out for her own bases but would appreciate the assistance of friendly powers in the form of war materials which she needs.

(This cryptic comment apparently was both a hit for United States and British material aid, and a slap at Japan, which has been reported seeking bases in Thailand.)

Political circles here held that concern in Britain and the United States for Thailand's independence should deter Japan from provoking a crisis.

Victory Campaign

Post Office Cancellation Stamps With "V" Mark

Ottawa.—Canada's post office is going to take a part in the empire's "V for Victory" campaign.

"City post offices across the country soon will be using a new form of stamp cancellation, bearing a clearly-marked "V" followed by the now-familiar Morse code dot-dot-dot-dot.

"The new impression will be used in place of the standard form with the horizontal black bars," said C. C. McGrail, district director of postal services. "It will be used alternately, week by week, with the 'Emblazon Now' impressions introduced some time ago."

Fighting In Crete

Thousands British Troops Still Carrying On Warfare

London.—The Daily Mail, in an Alexandria despatch, said that 1,000 British troops still marines have been waging guerrilla warfare in Crete for more than two months.

The British troops, living in mountain caves, have been raiding the Germans every night, sniping and ambushing them by day, siphoning their food and weapons and sabotaging their supplies, the newspaper said.

They have allied themselves with hardy mountain Cretans who still are unsubdued, the despatch said.
